

Leon Renaker Is Murdered In Home

With the head crushed and the left side badly mutilated, the body of Leon Renaker, aged 35 years, prominent business man of Winchester, was found lying across a bed in his home in the heart of the residential district by Mrs. Renaker shortly after 11 o'clock yesterday morning following her return from a visit to Cincinnati.

There were no signs of a struggle. The wire screen of the back door had been removed.

All telephone and electric light wires were cut.

A large amount of money believed to have been carried by Mr. Renaker was missing.

Mr. Renaker had not been seen by anyone so far found since his return late Sunday night from Cincinnati, where he, accompanied by Mrs. Renaker, had gone on business, and where she remained until yesterday.

Mr. Renaker had undressed for bed, and was ready to retire, it is thought, when he was attacked and murdered.

Mr. Renaker conducted a large poultry and egg business in Winchester and has been in the custom of carrying from $400 to $500 in cash on his person.

The body was found in bed in a room on the second story of the home.

The indications are that his assailant had crept into the room and dealt him several blows with a blunt instrument.

Blood was found on the window curtains and marks resembling crimson finger prints were found on the window sill.

The body itself was found in the center of a pool of blood.

No verdict has been returned by the coroner.

Police are working on the case, but there are no clues so far which might lead to the identity of the murderer.

Mr. Renaker was the son of the late Sell Renaker, who for a number of years was a partner in the poultry business in Mt. Sterling with the late Thomas Heinrich. Young Renaker was well known in Mt. Sterling where the news of his untimely death was received with much sorrow.

VALUABLE PIN FOUND

Last week while John McKee, of Cincinnati, was in this city acting as special judge at the races here during the fair, he had the misfortune to lose a very handsome scarf pin, diamond set, and valued at several hundred dollars. A small ad placed in The Advocate at a trifling cost located the lost pin and restored it to its owner. Just five minutes after our paper was out on the streets the son of W. D. Burns, who had found the jewel, returned it and was the proud possessor of the $50 reward offered.

No Compromise In Sight In Rail Strike

With the government assuming control of freight traffic from midnight Tuesday night, the eastern railroads continuing their efforts to form new unions of shopmen and indications from Montreal that a walkout of 40,000 Canadian shopmen had been authorized, peace in the railway strike today seems a remote possibility.

Good will was apparent in the meeting at Baltimore between officials of the Baltimore & Ohio railroad and representatives of the shopmen, which have been regarded as a possible precursor to other individual settlements if successful.

No further spread of the strike was looked for, although fifty maintenance of way men at Shawnee, Okla., and a number at Moberly, Mo., quit work Tuesday because armed guards are patrolling railroad property.

A resolution adopted by representatives of nearly 300 general chairmen of the clerks' and freight handlers' union after they would resort to the "economic power" if their grievances are not adjusted, but it was believed that they would take no further strike action pending negotiations.

Plans have been perfected for delivering mail by motor truck at least once a day to every community in upper Michigan, North and South Dakota and Minnesota.

Motor trucks already are being used in portions of Wisconsin, Michigan and North Dakota.

Curtailment of train service during the last 24 hours was negligible.

In Chicago preparations were being made to substitute oil as fuel in the event of a shortage of coal as a result of the combined rail and coal strikes.

Reports of violence or threatened violence were slightly increased and troops were called out in three new states, while in Montana the Great Northern railroad was promised protection of United States deputy marshals at Havre and Wolf Point.

Three companies of Alabama state troops were mobilized at Birmingham ready for call to Albany, Ala., where disorders were reported.

Kentucky troops were ordered to Fonda, Bell county.

In Pennsylvania additional troops were called, several detachments being sent to strategic points.

Reports from Kingsville, Texas, said that two non-union workers had been attacked and beaten by a number of strikers.

An aged employe of the St. Louis, San Francisco railroad was beaten and cut in the yards at Memphis, Tenn.

A special deputy sheriff guarding the shops of the Seaboard Air Line at Jacksonville, Fla., was shot in the leg by unidentified men.

In Richmond, Va., a temporary injunction was granted to the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad and a similar one to the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac railroad restraining strikers from placing more than one picket at a point.

THE AGRICULTURAL SITUATION

(By National Bank of Commerce, New York)

Good crops at fair prices make the United States prosperous. Nearly one-half the people of the country are directly dependent upon agriculture and a much larger proportion are indirectly dependent upon it for livelihood. The ability of this country to produce food and other agricultural raw materials has made possible its rapid industrial development and is the basis of its foreign trade.

It is now mid-season and although adverse weather might result in marked downward revisions of crop estimates, it can be safely assumed that the crop year 1922 will be reasonably satisfactory. Even if harvest results should fall below the yield which has been forecast there is no doubt that the United States has a good wheat crop. The corn crop is by no means made. The July estimate is for a crop somewhat less than last year, but slightly in excess of the average crop during the five years 1916-'20. There is a large carry-over, however, and a yield equivalent to the five-year average would mean satisfactory conditions in the corn belt. With the exception of oats the outlook for other grains is good and large crops of potatoes and tobacco are expected. A cotton crop considerably larger than last year is now indicated, but uncertainty as to deterioration which may be caused by the boll-weevil makes the final yield uncertain.

The American farmer is assured of a market. The domestic market is the greatest consuming market of the world, the population of this country being equal to the combined population of the United Kingdom and the German Republic. The methods of handling, shipping, financing and marketing the crops of the United States for export trade are unexcelled, and the only important competitor of this country from the standpoint of freight haul to Europe is the Dominion of Canada. The exportable surplus of the American crops of 1922 will be very promptly absorbed by the international market.

The last two years have been discouraging to farmers, but they are increasingly becoming aware of their advantageous competitive position and are recovering their old confidence. Prices of leading farm products are now much above their recent low point and also well above the pre-war level. There is no reason to expect a return of the price levels of the boom years, but there is likewise no reason which might justify a fear that the unprofitable prices of the adjustment period of 1920-'21 will return. Farmers are reducing their indebtedness. They are expanding their purchases of agricultural implements, fertilizers and other farm necessities, and the time is not far ahead when they will be in a position to increase their purchases of other classes of goods. Business in the agricultural districts shows confidence and that confidence is a justifiable basis for faith in the entire business situation of the country.

QUISENBERRY RESIGNS

Donald Quisenberry, who has been holding a position with the Standard Oil Company in this city, has resigned and has been succeeded by Frank Ray. Mr. Quisenberry is one of the most capable young business men in the city and it is hoped by friends that he will remain in Mt. Sterling. Mr. Ray is an energetic young business man and is thoroughly qualified for the position at the service station.

Low Insurance On Leaf Urged

Lower insurance rates on tobacco in barns may grow out of a movement started some time ago, state representatives now being engaged in working out a plan to present the matter of lower rates to the Kentucky Fire Insurance Underwriters' Association August 1.

In addition to a lower rate it was said yesterday that an agreement practically has been reached to increase considerably the amount of insurance allowed on tobacco, the proposed maximum being approximately $25 to $300 an acre, which is about twice the amount allowed per acre last year.

The proposal for lower rates is credited to what one of the state agents called "the systematic and business-like methods of handling tobacco used by the Burley Tobacco Growers' Co-operative Association." S. B. Kennedy, of the Westchester Fire Insurance Company, is head of the committee working on this proposition, which also will include a central adjustment bureau for the prompt settlement of any claims of growers on policies of tobacco in the barns.

The proposal for lower rates on insurance in barns, it was said by one of the state agents, it is not justified by experience of the companies for the past five years with the class of business, as it has not proved a particularly profitable class, but the business-like system of the new Burley Association is said to have impressed the insurance men, and the great increase in price over a year ago caused the decision to increase the maximum of insurance allowed the growers.

Hoover Heads Coal Control Committee

President Harding has set in motion the federal emergency fuel control organization with the selection of a central coal distribution committee of government officials under the chairmanship of Secretary of Commerce Herbert Hoover.

The commerce secretary, at the request of the president, immediately wired governors of the various states asking them to set up emergency state organizations as the first step toward decentralizing organization for equitable distribution and maintenance of fair prices for coal under the administration's plan.

"Under this plan," Hoover said, "the distribution for railway use will be directed from Washington, but, with the possible exception of a few state public utilities, the responsibility for all other distribution will rest upon organizations set up under the state control."

Co-operation of state organizations also was asked by Interstate Commerce Commissioner Atchison, who telegraphed the several transportation regulatory bodies of the states east of the Mississippi river requesting them to act as representatives of the commission in facilitating operation of the emergency service orders giving priority to the shipments of coal and necessities.

The federal coal distribution committee selected by the president consists of Attorney General Daugherty, Secretary of the Interior Fall and Secretary Hoover and Commissioner Atchison, or their representatives, under the temporary chairmanship of the commerce secretary.

A fifth member is to be added to the committee later, Mr. Hoover said, who will undertake the administration direction, while the ultimate character of the organization "must depend on the situation."

This was taken at the commerce department to indicate that the committee would be an elastic body with administrative sides representing the railroads or geographical sections, pressed into service as expert advice on the needs of those sections may be required.

Paris Plays Here Saturday and Sunday

Paris, probably the strongest team in the league just at this time, and at present tied with Maysville for first honors, will be the attraction here at Fair Grounds park Saturday and Sunday. As the Mt. Sterling team has been materially strengthened, our boys are confident of winning one if not both of these contests. Harrison, our star twirler, will be in the box Sunday—which is 'nuf said to insure an immense crowd.

Maysville is the attraction at the local park this afternoon and the pitchers scheduled to oppose each other are Slim Salles, formerly of the New York Giants, for Maysville, and Harrison, our sterling ace, formerly with the Cincinnati Reds, and who has struck out 20 men in his two starts in the league.

President Hill was in Louisville yesterday and secured the services of Tincup, a cousin of the star twirler of the Louisville Colonels, and said to be equally as good a pitcher. Brunner, a third baseman, formerly in the Kitty League, and said to be one of the best in the country both in the field and at the bat, will report tonight and will participate in Saturday's and Sunday's games. Tincup will make his initial start Saturday.

"REPORTED MISSING" GIVES OWEN MOORE BIG CHANCE

Owen Moore's long motion picture career has included many successes, but it is doubtful if he has ever before reached the heights he does in the Selznick special, "Reported Missing," which will be at the Tabl Theatre next Tuesday. This is a picture which absolutely lives up to the slogan adopted for it, namely, "the greatest action picture ever made." Owen is the center of more amusing and thrilling scenes that it has ever before been his good fortune to take part in. In the laugh-producing moments of the picture he is ably assisted by the genial Tom Wilson, long a standby with D. W. Griffith. Wilson is a master of comedy and has acquired the fine art of inspiring enjoyment as few men have.

In addition to the comedy incidents in which Owen Moore figures, he is the principal in a number of thrilling scenes which the makes of serial thrillers may well envy. Some of these shockers are the race between the Sea Sled Broadway III and a hydroplane. Moore is in the sea plane and the very villainous Oriental ship master is the sea sled. The sled wins and upon reaching dry land the Chinaman makes use of an automobile. Moore gives chase in another machine and is overtaking his rival when a child crosses his path. In an attempt to steer clear of the youngster Moore throws his machine over an embankment. Another incident which smacks of the real Drury Lane melodrama is the fight in the stronghold of the Oriental schemers. Here is a battle which is worth the price of admission alone. If you want romance, laughter and excitement, don't miss "Reported Missing."

Turn Your Wishes Into Action

"I allowed all my high wages to get away from me," said Arnes to Bartin. "Now that I can't save, I wish I had."

"That's pretty much my story, too."

"But there's one thing very sure: If times ever go back to what they were, my wife and I are going to do differently. We're going to save something!"

"We aren't waiting for times to go back," said Bartin; "we've begun to save right now. True, it's only a little we can spare—but something goes into our savings account every single pay day. We're tired of just breaking even."

Do you wish you had saved more? Ought you to save more? Then don't wait—but begin to save now! Deposit a definite amount in a Savings Account every pay day. Then, as times improve, you can save still more—and save it more easily.

AN OPEN LETTER

There appeared in the columns of this good paper a few weeks ago a very ugly and insinuating article from the pen of a gentleman from California, who claimed to be a minister in the Church of the Nazarene, and who was pastor of the local church in Mt. Sterling, in which he leaves the impression that the closing of the tent meeting which was being conducted by your humble servant and wife was due to the fact that we were not standing for the principles of our church. Here and now I wish to deny the allegation and defy the author of the statement. I furthermore wish to state to the public that I closed the meeting of my own volition, and my reason for bringing the meeting to an abrupt ending was due to the fact that Mr. Hill, the pastor, and a number of his folks were living in open violation of the laws of the Church of the Nazarene and became enraged because I relentlessly contended for the principles of our Zion. I notice the papers stated that Mr. and Mrs. Hill resigned the pastorate on account of ill health, but the fact is, they were asked to leave by the district superintendent, or he told me, at least, that he would ask them to leave in the presence of another minister. Hoping this will clear up the minds of the public on this matter, and thanking the editor for space in his good paper, I am, yours in the King's happy service.—C. L. Wireman.

SHOWS UP VALUATION PLAN

One of the most valuable contributions to the tariff discussion is a letter written by Senator Alice Pomerene, Democrat, Ohio, to a large manufacturer, which the senator had inserted in the Congressional Record in lieu of a speech. It deals with the American valuation plan, which the pending tariff bill authorizes the president to substitute for foreign valuations under certain conditions. The senator first disapproves the suggestion of his correspondent that it is easier to determine American values than foreign values by stating that we have consular officers and treasury agents in every part of the world and that their reports are available to custom officials, and further that custom officials have the right to call witnesses and books and papers and inquire into foreign values of the importers, the same as under the American valuation plan.

One great value of Senator Pomerene's letter to the average reader is in the concrete illustration of how the American valuation plan would work. His letter says:

"To sustain your contention that the American valuation plan would not aid the American producer in advancing prices you say, 'If an article is valued at $4 in Germany and a similar article has a valuation in the United States of $8, then to equalize the difference under the American valuation a 50 per cent tariff should be set. That would mean a tariff on the article in question of $4. Add that $4 to the $4 German valuation and the result is $8, thus equalizing the American valuation of a similar article.'

"You further say, 'If then the American manufacturers try to raise the price, let us see what would happen. Supposing they boost the price to $10, then the tariff would be 50 per cent of $10, or $5. Add that $5 tariff to the $4 German valuation and the German selling price to the United States would be $9. The result plainly shows that the American manufacturers could not boost the price; otherwise the Germans could take all the business.'

"Given your hypothetical illustration with your hypothetical prices and circumstances, you perhaps have proven your case to your entire satisfaction. You make the mistake, however, of assuming all the while that the change in valuation can only apply to the American market. Your example overlooks the changing of prices in the other countries. The debates in the senate show that very substantial advances in the prices of products as well as of labor are being made in Germany, and particularly was this true during the months of January and February.

"Now let us take your illustration with the price of the article, $8, and with a 50 per cent ad valorem tariff duty of $4. Then assume that the price in Germany advances from $4 to $6. If this article was to enter the United States, the importer would have to pay the German price, $6, plus the ad valorem duty of $4, or $10; so it would be utterly impossible for the German article to enter the United States, with the effect that there would be no competition at all between domestic and foreign articles, and the producer in the United States could advance his price from $8 to just below $10. The further result would follow that the tariff duty which supposedly was intended as a source of revenue to the government of the United States would yield no revenue whatsoever. Effects will differ with varying prices.

"I understand, of course, some men holding economic views like your own are absolutely opposed to any imports which in any way tend to compete with their products. If that is sound policy, then it would be simpler and wiser to place an embargo at once on all imports; but no school of thought with which I am familiar is willing that this shall be done during a period of peace.

"Again, I note your suggestion. Let us take an article at a valuation in Germany of $4, France $5, England $6 and the United States $8. Under American valuation the tariff should be 50 per cent, which would compel the German, French and English people to pay $4 tariff on that article. On the other hand, if foreign valuation were used it would mean that a tariff of 100 per cent must be placed on the article, whereby the German would pay $4, the Frenchman $5 and the Englishman $6 tariff."

"Again, it is your purpose to keep out all competition. You would make the price of the German article with the 50 per cent tariff duty $8, the French $9, and the English $10. In other words, your plan would limit all American buying to Germany."

EXPOSES CLOTURE "BLUFF"

As previously stated in these columns, the Republican move for cloture on the tariff bill was a bluff. The movers knew in advance that they did not have the necessary vote, but they carried out their pretense of wanting speedy action, although they could only muster 45 votes against 35. The 35 opponents included five Republicans—Borah, Brandegee, LaFollette, Moses and Norris. The Democrats, of course, voted solidly against it.

The hypocrisy of the Republican attempt to adopt cloture was exposed by Senator Caraway, Democrat, of Arkansas, prior to the vote, when he said:

"If Republican senators in fact wanted to pass this measure (tariff) as they now say they do, why was it that the president of the United States, why was it that the leaders of the senate and of the house, by unanimous consent, agreed that the house should adjourn until the fifteenth of August? Such action is in bad faith and the country knows it. 'Oh, why waste all this time to call the attention of the country to the fact that senators on the other side of the chamber know the bill is bad and they do not want to pass it.'"

HOLDING THE HOME SECTOR

Unknown to all but a comparative few of our citizens is the grimmest, saddest, and yet the noblest and most patriotic business carried on within the boundaries of Montgomery county.

This business—for a business it is in its organization, management and practical problems—has its active headquarters in the American Legion club rooms, on the second floor of the Tyler-Apperson building. Here each weekday afternoon the home service secretary of our Red Cross chapter sits at her desk, and to her come the sick and shattered veterans of Montgomery county's world war army.

No flags are flying along their native streets now. No patriotic music stirs and stimulates them. No frenzied crowds are cheering, hidding them God speed or welcome. The disabled are back in the home sector, each man fighting his lonely, bitter fight, many sentenced to premature death, others wanting the mere necessities of life.

A little band of local Red Cross officials, with the funds obtained by the last roll call, are striving to remedy these conditions in Montgomery county. More than one hundred and fifty disability claims, demanding voluminous paper work and careful investigation, have been filed by the chapter—and the number is steadily increasing.

But red tape and inefficiency clog the Veterans' Bureau. Usually months pass before a claim is allowed and proper medical care is given the claimant. In the meantime, if he and his family are in want, it is "The Greatest Mother in the World" who must somehow meet the emergency.

Medicines, hospitalization, transportation, food and clothing are furnished to the limit of the chapter's resources. The roughest and most isolated sections of the county are combed in a tireless effort to find and give relief to every veteran who needs it. Added always to that is the personal touch, the human sympathy and advice and understanding, that heals wounds beyond the reach of ministering hands.

Daily they climb the stairs to the Red Cross office, these boys who, with their comrades, a few brief years ago were our hulwark against invasion, rape, pillage, tribute and massacre. And daily and nightly the little band of Red Cross workers battle with them in the home sector against the rising tide of governmental neglect, disease and death.

The Advocate, knowing and appreciating the vital service being rendered by the Montgomery County Chapter, calls it to the attention of our fellow citizens. The continued necessity for such service is a challenge to the honor, generosity and patriotism of every man and woman in this community.

DEFINITION OF PESSIMIST AND ALSO OF PSYCHOLOGIST

Dr. E. Y. Mullins, president of the largest theological seminary in the United States, says "a pessimist is a blind man in a dark room at midnight hunting for a black cat that is not there." Dr. J. Mountain, Tunbridge Wells, England, says "a psychologist is a blind man in a dark room seeking a black hat that is not there." Remember the words and their meaning as given by two of the greatest scholars in the world. The definitions as given by these men make the words synonymous.

WE JUST WANT TO SAY.

That newsprint has advanced to a 10 per cent rate is a handicap on the publishers unless they increase subscription rate like this: $1.50 papers increase to $1.65 and $2.00 papers to $2.20, and likewise our advertising rates to 33 cents per inch instead of 30 cents, as it is now. We won't increase the subscription price of The Advocate, nor will we add to our advertising rates. The middle of the boat is ours, and we will endure the increase in paper at our own loss.

SCATTER THE FLOWERS NOW.

"If with pleasure you are viewing
Any work a man is doing,
If you like him or you are for him,
Tell him now:
Don't withhold your approbation
Till the parson makes oration,
And he lies with snowy hills o'er his brow.

"If he earns your praise, bestow it,
When he 'makes good' let him know it;
Let the words of true encouragement be said;
Do not wait till life is over
And he is underneath the clover,
For he cannot read the tombstone when he is dead."

Deeds worthy of roses may pass unnoticed; they should not be, for encouragement counts. Encouragement lifts to nobler deeds and inspires to action the man down and out. Scatter the roses now. A man was lying in the gutter beastly drunk; a good woman chanced to pass that way; she knew the object, a demon in human guise, and, sweet of spirit, she placed her handkerchief between the face and the curious passing throng. He was aroused, viewed the covering, and realized that someone cared for him yet. Then he arose and swore he would be a man; broke the shackles of intemperance, and John B. Goff electrified the world in his plea for the unfortunate dram drinker. Shield the face and scatter the flowers now.

RELIGIOUS

There will be a business meeting of the Baptist church next Sunday morning following the preaching hour. There will be no business of importance.

Business Meeting—Deacons of the Baptist church will assemble in business session in the men's Sunday School class room at the close of the Sunday School next Sunday morning.

Methodist Church—Sunday School at 9:30. Study of the Bible is good for a hot day, or any day. Come. Morning worship at 10:45. Theme, "Eternal Day." Epworth League at 6:45. Topic, "The New Immigrant." Evening union service at the Christian church; sermon by Rev. Charles A. Ray. "Come with us and we will do thee good."

Somerset Disciples of Christ—The protracted meeting is growing in interest. The pastor, Rev. C. L. Byatt, is ably assisted by Pastor-Evangelist Rev. E. B. Bourland, of Lancaster. The preacher is thoughtful and pleasing. Miss Edith Elliott, of Sulphur, leads the music with good home talent and her solos are very impressive. The meeting will continue until after August 6.

Baptist Church—A letter from the pastor, Rev. Olus Hamilton, received Monday, from Adamsville, Tenn., advises that he will reach home Friday or Saturday and will preach at the morning hour from the subject, "Robbing God," and the evening hour, "Man's Only Hope." The pastor hopes to meet a large congregation at each service. A special invitation is extended to every one to be at these services.

MATIN SONG

"When I have come to die let a new dawn
Lie rose and opal on the palling sky;
Let morning thrill with life that still lives on
When I have come to die.

"For I have known the agony of night
And the cold stars above Gethsemane;
Let death be dawn for me,
Let me look last on pools of living light."

That only which we have within can we see without. If we meet no gods be sure it is because we harbor none.—Emerson.

HOMIE PHILOSOPHY FOR 1922

Here was young Jim Jones just went into his back yard to see how his grapes were coming along, and every one of them was dead—not a leaf in sight. He was sure he had doped the whole thing out so he would have a wonderful grape juice crop this year. He got the finest vines, planted them with the greatest care, and then gave them a dose of manure he was sure would make them come up great. In the winter months he dug around them and gave them more manure to keep them going through the cold spell. "Burned up," remarked old Jake when he saw them. "Ain't nothin' better'n manure, but too much kills. Plants are like humans. Grapes most of all—grow best when they have to fight, and don't get rich food too easy."

TO THE DEMOCRATS OF THE NINTH CONGRESSIONAL DISTRICT OF KENTUCKY:

The primary election for the nomination of Congressional candidates is drawing near.

Reports that I have received from all sections of the district convince me that my success in the primary is assured if those who favor my nomination support me with their vote.

My only danger lies in the general belief among my friends that I really have no race which might result in a large number of them remaining at home on election day.

Many strong candidates have been defeated through the failure of their friends to vote by reason of their over confidence. I, therefore, beg to express the hope that all who advocate my nomination will support me with both their influence and their vote in THE PRIMARY ELECTION ON SATURDAY, AUGUST THE 5TH, 1922.

HARVESTING SPEEDING UP INTEREST IN COVER CROPS

Interest in the use of cover crops to protect fields from erosion and leaching during the winter continues to grow in many sections of the state as the Kentucky harvest season progresses and fields are left bare, according to R. E. Stephenson, extension specialist in soils from the College of Agriculture. Calloway county farmers are the most recent ones to join in the movement, plans having been started in that county to have every tobacco field covered with a growing crop during the winter. Rye will be used in practically all cases except where wheat is grown as a regular farm crop and seeded after tobacco. Farmers in the county who never before had used cover crops last year seeded 1,000 acres of rye for this purpose and an attempt will be made this year to have the acreage increased.

"Every bare field should be seeded in the fall to some crop that will protect the soil from erosion and leaching during the winter," declared Mr. Stephenson. The more sloping the land the looser and the looser the soil the greater will be the need for protection of this kind.

"Tobacco fields furnish a good example of the kind that are particularly in need of some growing crop for protection during the winter. Tobacco is carefully cultivated, not a weed is allowed to grow and the soil is left fine and mellow. When fall and winter rains come, the water flows unretarded over the mellow surface, taking with it the rich surface that contains the manure and fertilizers which were applied to the growing tobacco crop.

"Much of this loss can be prevented by seeding a fall crop such as wheat, barley or winter oats which are successfully grown in certain sections of the state. Rye and vetch and sometimes crimson clover also are used successfully. Rye is extremely dependable and when seeded with vetch makes an unsurpassed covering regardless of whether or not it is used for grazing or later turned under as a green manure. One bushel of rye and 10 to 20 pounds of vetch an acre is a good rate of seeding.

"In order to do the best work in saving plant food, the cover crop must be seeded as early as possible. This makes it possible to save the plant food that would otherwise be lost through the action of the warm fall rains."

Some statesmen want to leave footprints on the sands of time; others merely want to cover up their tracks.

POLITICAL FACTS IN EPIGRAMS

The Fourth of July speech made by Representative Edwin L. Davis, of Tennessee, in New York City, bristled with sparkling epigrams which makes it one of the most effective speeches made in celebration of our national holiday. The following extracts are taken therefrom:

"With 168 majority in the house and 24 majority in the senate the G. O. P. has been unable to function. It seems to have a lot of control, but no speed."

"Both of these bills (tariff and ship subsidy) are for the benefit of special interests. They (the Republicans) are trying to pay their campaign contributions going and coming."

"The results of the disarmament conference constitute merely some steps in the right direction and some steps in the wrong direction."

"During the last campaign the Republicans pledged to the nation 'Harding and Prosperity.' They have fulfilled only the first half of the pledge—they gave us Harding. Their pledge has been translated into 'Harding and Hard Times.'"

"A large majority of the people voted for a change—and got it. They exchanged eight years of Democratic prosperity for four years of Republican adversity. The humorous philosopher, Ahe Martin, well expressed it when he said, 'Tell Brinkley, who voted for a change, was let out at the saw mill the other day. Millions of Tell Brinkleys have been let out under the Republican administration.'"

"Normalcy" seems to be having serious tire trouble."

"There has been a reduction in revenue as a natural result of a reduction in incomes under Republican misrule."

"Reactionary Republicanism is not a cure for any ail that may afflict the body politic—in fact, it is a malady itself."

LOST—Extra tire on rim, vacuum cup, 33x4½. Suitable reward if returned to this office or notify T. F. Allen, Owingsville. (81-2t-pd)

PUREBRED RAMS IN DEMAND WITH GOOD SHEEP PROFITS

Good profits that have been made from sheep in Kentucky during the last year have helped create a marked interest among farmers in the value of purebred rams for flock improvement, according to L. J. Horlacher, in charge of sheep work at the College of Agriculture. Numerous inquiries are being received from farmers in different sections of the state requesting the college and county agricultural agents to assist them in finding purebred rams that can be purchased for use during the fall breeding season, he said. Rams of the type desired are scarce and indications are that prices for them will be rather high, he added.

Reports being received from county agents in various sections of the state are considered good indications of the rapid way in which many farmers are replacing the scrub rams on their farms with purebreds. Crittenden county farmers who are co-operating with County Agent John Spencer are carrying out an extensive campaign for the introduction of more purebred rams in that section of the state. Hampshires seem to be in demand, orders for 15 registered rams of this breed having been made up to the present time.

Three purebred rams of the Hampshire breed have been ordered by Livingston county farmers, according to County Agent L. C. Pace, who adds that several more probably will be placed in the county. E. A. Whalin, county agent of Ballard county, has a request for an extra good Hampshire ram, while H. J. Childress, Marion county agent, reports that another purebred Southdown recently has been added to the purebred rams already in that county.

In Wayne county, County Agent H. J. Hayes, together with a number of farmers who are co-operating, are putting on a campaign for the use of more purebred ram. Ramboulliets are popular in that county in view of the fact that they have demonstrated their superior ability to improve the common mountain sheep.

It is probable that several Ramboulliet rams will be used in that county this fall, he said.

The new Goodyear
Cross-Rib Tread Cord

A Remarkable New Cord Tire at a Popular Price

Here is a big, sturdy, long-wearing new tire built to satisfy the buyer on every point of mileage, quality and price.

It is designed especially for the man who wants the essential advantages of cord tire performance at the lowest possible price.

It is designed to offer the buyer a quality product at a price even lower than he has formerly paid for a "long discount" tire. It has a different tread from the famous Goodyear All-Weather Tread Cord—a new tread with a deep, clean-cut, cog-like pattern—and its selling price ranges from 20 to 25% less.

This new tire is the Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord.

Like the All-Weather Tread Cord it is liberally oversize in all straight-side sizes, the 4½-inch tire, for example, actually measuring nearly 5 inches.

Like the All-Weather Tread Cord, its foundation is genuine high-grade long-staple cotton.

Like the All-Weather Tread Cord, it embodies the efficient group-ply construction, a Goodyear patent.

Like the All-Weather Tread Cord, it is the product of an experienced company which has a world-wide reputation to safeguard.

Look at the prices of the new Goodyear Cross-Rib Tread Cord, listed below.

Compare these prices with net prices you are asked to pay for "long discount" tires of unknown reputation and value.

Why take a chance on such tires?—you know it doesn't pay.

DISCORD IN GLEE CLUB

Senator Stanley, Democrat, Kentucky, is always happy in descriptive comment, as witness the following from a recent speech explaining the discord among prominent Republicans:

"Mr. President, may I respectfully and affectionately suggest to my good friend and neighbor from Indiana (Mr. Watson) that the trouble with this sepulchral glee club, this doleful chorus, of which the president spoke, is not that one man is doing all the singing, but that too many are singing and singing in different tunes. For instance, whenever the president sings in falsetto the powerful voice of the senator from Idaho (Mr. Borah) is heard in a deep and discordant bass; and when the president wants to sing low the senator from California (Mr. Johnson) persists in singing high; and when the president wants to sing a good old reactionary doxology the senator from Nebraska (Mr. Norris) breaks out in a progressive anthem. It is not that there is only one singing, but that there are a half dozen singing at the same time and all singing in a different tune and on a different theme."

If instead of boring holes in the earth for oil everybody would dig a hole and plant a fruit tree, there'd be millions in it. A fruit tree is an almost sure thing, but an oil well is a gamble.

"BEHIND THE MIRRORS"

The glimpses of our great men which the author of "The Mirrors of Washington" gives us in his new book "Behind the Mirrors," are quite as interesting and in some cases quite as enlightening as those in the first named work. From "Behind the Mirrors" take a peek at President Harding and his cabinet:

President Harding—"Feebler than Taft."

Secretary of State Hughes—"Mr. Hughes' mind is distinctly inferior to Mr. Harding's, which is one reason why he never became president and Mr. Harding did."

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon—"The shyest and most awkward man who ever rose to power."

Secretary of War Weeks—"Nearer akin mentally to the president than any other member of the cabinet, but with more industry and more capacity for details than his chief."

Secretary of the Navy Denby—"Has a big heart and more enthusiasm than he has self-command, judgment and intelligence."

Secretary of the Interior Fall—"He has the frontiersman's impatience. From his kind, lynch law springs."

Attorney General Daugherty—"In physique, burly, thick-necked, his eyes are unsteady, his face alternately oval and minatory—I should say he bluffed effectively—rough in personality. His view of the world being highly personal, his instinctive idea of office is that it, too, is personal, something to be used, always within the law, to aid friends and to punish enemies."

Secretary of Commerce Hoover—"The practical utility of his mind, is conditioned upon the minds of Mr. Harding, Mr. Weeks and Mr. Daugherty."

Secretary of Labor Davis—"A professional glad-hand mnn."

LEADING A DOG'S LIFE

The Argyle (Wis.) Atlas editor got in bad recently to hear him tell it. The story leads back to where his little girl acquired possession and exclusive ownership of a long-haired pup of doubtful ancestry, and then went visiting. With no one in authority who knew how to raise a dog, the scribe attempted to take up its education where it had been dropped, though hampered by lack of jurisdiction. He found it downtown mingling with kindred spirits that had never known restraint, and carrying on a very harmless but animated flirtation—a case of love at first sight. Hurriedly hanging his pencil on a nail and sticking his scissors behind his ear, the editor attempted to drive his protegee home when he found himself going around in a circle, and he could not tell whether he was chasing the pup or the pup was chasing him. After some violent exercise there was a brief cessation of hostilities, during which a promoter of domestic tranquillity caught the pup, and with a string tied to its collar, the much subdued editor started to lead it home. A corner loafer called out, "Animal trainer," and the marshal asked, "Where is his tag?" Another yelled, "Pinch him!" A wag murmured, "He is leading a dog's life," and then when Buster started on ahead, pulling at his leash, a stranger said, "Poor old blind man—but what a faithful dog!"

Anybody wanting an animal of intelligence and considerable inattentiveness wouldn't have to steal it.

Some of the men who get indignant with the high cost of living are like the farmer who cursed the oil trust and got up four hours before daylight so he will burn plenty of oil.

Another Fable—Once upon a time we asked an automobile bug what made him limp when he walked and he did not reply that one of his cylinders wasn't firing.

CLOSED CARS

Studebaker enclosed cars are an evolution of the fine coach work of former generations. They represent the skill of engineering specialists, plus the standard of 70 years' experience in building quality vehicles.

Strength, weight, resistance to shock, freedom from rattles, are all subjected to searching analysis and gruelling road tests under every possible condition of road and weather.

The body framework is of selected white ash, thoroughly seasoned and rigidly inspected.

Painting is comparable to the highest grade custom coach work. It includes 26 different operations and 15 separate coats of material.

The seat springs are of the highest grade. The upholstery is of mohair velvet plush velour, selected for wearing qualities and rich neutral tones which combine elegance with service. Door-window regulators of the latest improved type permit quick change from weatherproof protection to an airy open body.

Studebaker enclosed bodies are as good as the chassis. They are built to endure.

WEATHER AND CROP

Summary of weather and crop conditions in Kentucky for the week ending July 25:

The temperature during the week averaged near normal, but the nights were quite cool, good rains in the southern and western counties furnishing sufficient moisture; but there was a deficiency in the northeastern district, where only scattered showers occurred. Corn made satisfactory progress and its condition is excellent in the southern and western districts. It is fair to good in the northeastern section, but is "firing" in places on hillside land. Corn, pastures and all other crops need rain badly in the Licking valley, the central bluegrass region and the extreme northeastern counties. Early corn is earing well generally. There was some damage to bay by rain near the beginning of the week, but in the main the weather was favorable for hay harvest, which was completed. The week was favorable for threshing wheat, which is nearing completion. Threshing oats is in progress with poor yields in most districts. Except for considerable rust in certain localities in the western counties, early tobacco is generally excellent and far advanced for this time in the season. Most of it has been topped, and the soil moisture is sufficient for proper spreading except in the northern burley district where there is complaint of "firing." Late tobacco is generally doing well, but is uneven in size. It needs rain in the northern counties. Pastures, gardens, clover and alfalfa continued to make satisfactory growth in all of the state except the dry northeast, where their condition is only fair.

Two Exciting Incidents In a Missionary's Life

(By Dr. J. Pike Powers)

While living in Owingsville, Barth county, in 1870, I had filed an appointment at Wyoming, at the mouth of Sinte creek, one evening and was riding horseback in company with a Mr. Willroy, a merchant, who was going to Owingsville to get some supplies for his store. It was late in the evening and night soon overtook us. It became very dark. The road crossed and recrossed the creek a great many times in the distance of seven miles. When we had gone about six miles, riding along side by side in the darkness, talking to each other for company, Willroy being on my right, I thought I heard some one pass me on my left. In a few moments I asked my friend, "Willroy, did you hear some one pass down the creek just now?" "No, indeed, sir," (he was from eastern Virginia) he replied. "Well, I did," I said. We were silent for a few minutes, and I said, "Listen, Willroy, he is coming back." The sound of his horse's feet on the rocks was more and more distinct. Low murmuring voices were heard in front of us. That road had a bad reputation and I began to feel very uneasy. My blood tingled. On came our mysterious rider, right behind us now. He pressed his horse like a wedge between ours, separating us right and left! It was as dark as Egypt! I laid down on my horse to try to get him between me and the sky, but could see nothing. His knees pressed against mine. I knew that something had to be done, and that very quickly. Saluting him, I said, "I am Mr. Powers and this is my friend, Mr. Willroy. I have been down to Wyoming to preach this afternoon and am returning to Owingsville. Will you please tell us the best road to get up the mountain?" Then he replied, "I am out looking for a cow. Did you men see any cow on the road?" "No, sir, we have not seen anything since night set in." "Well, I believe, the best way for you to ride is by Shrou's." Those voices ahead of us sounded louder, and I said, "Willroy, we would better pull off right here." Saying good night to the stranger, we turned to the left and rode away by "Shrou's." That night a man was shot nearly to death by that crowd and one of them was arrested and brought to jail in Owingsville.

At another time I made an appointment at Rothwell, some twenty miles or more southeast of Mt. Sterling, on the new narrow-gauge coal road. I had never been there. The train arrived in the afternoon and I was to preach at night. I went to a large store which had a big warehouse in the rear. The merchant, whose name has escaped me, was very kind and courteous and said we could move the things in the warehouse and hold meeting in there. So the place was made ready. While standing by a counter in the store, a big burly man walked up to me and, in a loud voice, inquired, "Are you a Northern Methodist or a Southern Methodist?" "I don't happen to be either," I said; "I am a Baptist." With that he stepped to my side, threw his heavy arm around my neck, saying, "My mother is a good woman, my father is a damned old —, and I am a border ruffian." With that he lifted me off my feet with his strong arm and began to whirl me around and to sing the vilest songs I ever heard, protesting that his mother was a good woman, that his father was a damned old hypocrite and that he was a border ruffian! The situation was perilous and required tact and diplomacy. I looked around (my eyes were about the only members I could move he held me so tightly!) to see the merchant, but he had gone and everyone else except the ruffian who held me; so I said to him, "I expect you are a pretty clever fellow when you are at home." "No, I'm not; I'm a damned border ruffian." Then he would rub his cheek all over mine and spit in my face. I prayed for patience and endurance, but he seemed determined to provoke me to wrath. So he lifted me up and down and danced, still holding my neck as in a vise, while he sang his filthy songs and his saliva flew all over my face. Presently he stopped his wild orgy for a moment and reached around with his hand and drew out a heavy pistol and rubbed it back and forth across my upper lip, impressing upon me the fact that he was a "border ruffian." He held it in his hand and asked me as he unscrewed the vise from my neck, "What made you come here to preach? There is no Baptist church here and these people have no money to give you. Why don't you come up in the mountains where we can feed you and give you something, too," pulling out of his pocket a roll of bills as large as my wrist. "We could take care of you up there." Nearly an hour I had been held by his powerful arm, but now it was relaxed, and a voice outside called me. I looked around and saw a man's head at the outside of the door. He said, "Mr. Powers, would you like to see a coal mine?" I answered, "I certainly would, as I have never seen one, if my friend, Mr. —, will excuse me." I don't remember what he said, but I slowly backed away from him and joined my deliverer outside, who said to me with bated breath, "You don't want to see any coal mine now; you want to get to your room as quickly as possible. That man who held you is the worst man in all these mountains." Believe me, I did not stand upon my going. I "tuck and left." The ruffian left on a train down the river, and, seeing a man on a raft with whom he had had some words, he shot him through the window of the coach. These were two narrow escapes for which I devoutly thanked Almighty God.

How The Master Driver Became Master Tire Builder

IN 1903, driving the "999" racing car, Barney Oldfield started his career of victories that later earned him the title of "Master Driver of The World." To overcome the tire weaknesses that made racing difficult and dangerous, he studied tires—specified materials—supervised construction.

Today, Barney Oldfield is known as the "Master Tire Builder." Starting with the crude tires which carried the "999" one mile in sixty seconds, Oldfield gradually developed his famous Cords—a set of which covered 500 miles at eighty-eight miles an hour without a change.

In three years Oldfield tires have won every important race on American speedways. They are the only American tires that have ever taken first place in the French Grand Prix. They have won for three consecutive years in the 500-mile Indianapolis Sweepstakes. So far in 1923, Oldfields have lowered four World's Records and seven track records.

The Wichita Test Run gave evidence of Oldfield superiority in touring—when a set of four Cords covered 34,525 miles over rutted, frozen, winter roads—a performance attested by the Mayor of Wichita.

See your dealer and get a set of these rugged tires that Barney Oldfield has developed and perfected through a lifetime of practical tire experience. Their performance will convince you that they are "The Most Trustworthy Tires Built."
